

Water Policy WA

Ultimately the water future of this planet lies with sustainable power generation for desalination plants.

There is evidence everywhere in the world that human interference by damming watercourses and extracting the water upstream or to tap into underground reservoirs at a large scale upsets the balance of nature and destroys the ecology.

Paradoxically to provide for water we have to concentrate on power generation.

- We want to implement large priority funding into urgent research to provide us with the means to develop solar, wind, wave and other sustainable power generation.
- Technology developed will create a new home-grown industry and will have the potential to provide us with future jobs and prosperity.
- Compulsory rain-water collection for Industry and Households.
- Implementation of grey-water use by Industry (treated waste-water).
- Improve agricultural irrigation practices. Pipe open channels. Introduce water harvesting schemes.
- Ban the export of irrigated crops which require huge amounts of water to grow. (rice, cotton and sugar).
- Restrict pumping from the Gnangara mound underground water aquifer north of Perth to let it recover.
- Legislate to ensure that the underground water body south of Perth is not further polluted.
- Yarragadee aquifer in the South West to be used for local projects only.
- Ord River and Fitzroy River to be used to create food baskets in what is now marginal land (example: Israel ). Huge decentralised Export potential.
- Investigate desalination projects of brackish inland water bodies.
- We want to supply Perth further water needs by piping water from the Fitzroy River.

Water is our most valuable resource.

Future wars between countries for this most essential “commodity” have been forecast.
